

BEST WORK / BEST SELF

That's our battle cry here at C. R. Weeks. Character education is part of our curriculum because we want our students to grow into people of character. But character Education is more than helping children get along with others. It is also teaching them to work hard, develop their own personal talents and to encourage them to aim for excellence.

That is why we have two characters words as a focus each month. One word targets a performance trait like perseverance, or self discipline or Creativity. The other word helps students develop moral characteristics like respect and integrity and compassion for others.
